

A Simple Transaction.

A German correspondent of an eastern paper states that the silver for 100,000,000 rupees, bought in London for $3,333,000, when made into money in India left a profit of $6,666,000 rupees, which went into private pockets. On this, the Chicago Tribune makes this muddled comment: "That statement can only be made on the assumption that the 100,000,000 rupees thus coined would and did buy as much as would the same sum in gold which it would have cost to buy the silver when the latter was worth 60 pence per ounce. The private persons who had that quantity coined into rupees last year were not able to exchange them for gold at the old rate."

We believe Editor Medill knows more about alfalfa than he does about the situation in India. The German correspondent describes the situation exactly as it exists—and as Secretary Manning described it in his first report to Mr. Cleveland. The India mints are open to free coinage on British account, and through the process which the German correspondent so accurately describes, British merchants and business men are able to depress the price of American wheat and cotton as silver is depressed. To put the matter in terms that even a child may understand it, the British merchant buys 63 cents worth of bullion silver, transmits it to India, where it is worth a dollar, and buys Indian wheat or cotton. The Indian producer loses nothing, for the silver purchased with 63 cents in gold is worth a dollar in gold to him in all his transactions. The loss falls on the American farmer, who is compelled to sell for 63 cents what the Indian farmer gets a dollar for.

In 1885, Mr. Manning said that this system of robbery had amounted to untold millions. How much has it amounted to since?

The gold sharks of the east and the British traders are in partnership. Don't forget that fact!—Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

And unless they be and appear at the next term of said court, to be held for the county of Iron, and State of Missouri, at the Court House in said county on the fourth Monday in April, next (1893), and on or before the third day thereof (if the term shall so long continue; and if not, then before the end of the term), and plead, answer or demur to said plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken as confessed, judgment rendered in accordance with the prayer of said petition, and said real estate, or so much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy said judgment, interest and costs, be sold under a special fieri facias to be issued thereon.

It is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the Iron County Recorder, a weekly newspaper published in said county of Iron, and State of Missouri, on the first Monday in May next (1893), before the 1st day of May A. D. 1893.
